19 Off New-York, Feb. 12, 1833.—To the Officers of the Steemshap Uncle Sam—Gentlemen: Before taking leave of you, it affords as great pleasure to hear testiment to your kindness and skill, and to the excellent qualities of the noble vessel under your command.

During our short but very agreeable passage, you have pared no exertion in ministering to our wants and adding hour comforts.

The appointments of the steamer are such as to elicit the phase of cabin and atternage. The specious and luxurious sale-norms upon the after deck we believe are unsurpassed, fact unsequalied, by those of any other steamer upon the cean, and the arrangements of the other portions of the vessel have ovidently been made with an eye to use and comfort of passengers. By day and night, in makine and storm, we have glided swifely on without ties, continuon of affectify.

While remembering your universal attention and kindness, not only to us, but to those whom you found destitute at unfortunate, and the comfort and pleasure we have extended on board the Uncle Sam, we cannot forbear remembershing your staunch and elegant vessel to the patrons of the travelling public, and trust that upon each voyage she may be filled with passengers, and yourseleves surfanded with warm hearted friends.—which, gentlemen, by take pleasure in subscribing curreleves.

137 Steamship Cortess. Jan. 4, 1853.—We, the undersigned, pas engers on the steamship Cortes, on her late trip from Panams to San Francisco, conceive it to be our duty to express our feelings and sentiments in awarding our praises and thanks to the Captain, Purser, and other others, for the kind treatment which we have received on board said steamer.

Of the Captain, Thomas B. Cropper, Esq., we can only say that we believe him to be one of the most skillful of navigators, and a perfect gentleman in every respect. The manner in which he has conducted his ship, governed his passengers and crew, while it meets with our approbation, not only demonstrates him to be perfect master of his profession, but a man of feeling, sentiment, and strict integrity of purpose.

passengers and crew, while it meets with our approbation, sent only demonstrates him to be perfect master of his profession, but a man of feeling, sentiment, and strict integrity of purpose.

The sentlemantly Porser, Mr. Walter G. Smith, has performed the ardword duties peculiar to his office in the best possible manner, and to our entire satisfaction. Nothing has been omitted; and we feel under many obligations to him for the kind favors he has shown to us.

Mr. Healy, the first officer, has, by his kind deportment and manly bearing, merited the esteem of the passengers.

The other officers of the vessel we have always found gontlemanly, courtcous, and ever ready to perform their respective duties.

In conclusion, we would say that the ventilation and suiting qualities of the steamship Cortes are unsattpassed by any other vessel on the Pacific coast. Though death has been among us, and some of our number have found a watery grave, we cannot attribute the cause to lack of good regulations, or want of wholesome food and first-trate writer, but to sources entirely unconnected with this vessel.

CALEDONIAN BALL.—The Managers of the CALEDONIAN BALL respectfully annuages of that they will give their SECOND ANNUAL BALL on THURSDAY EVENING, Feb. 17, 1853, at TAMMANY HALL.

The Managers, in again appearing before the public, gratefully acknowledge the flattering encouragement they met with at their first Ball, and feel assured that the same spirit which animated their countrymen on that occasion, will segain spring forth, with increasing energy, on this. To renew the "Lesque" of Friendship, and strengthen the "Cevenant" of National Feeling, are noble objects in themselves, but when coupled with Charity, to which the proceeds of the ball will be devoted) it would surely be worse than superfluous to add one word by way of appeal. With these views, they have sparred no exertions in engaing the best performers of our National Moste, and in making everything contribute to the taste, comfort and happiness of all those whe may honor the ball with their presence.

Duors open at 7 o'clock. Dancing will commence pro-cisely at 8 o'clock. The termination of the ball will be known by the band playing "Good Night, an Joy be wi' you a."
